

The book, incorporating all three volumes, describes construction at the craft level, and while adjustments have to be made for modern practices, the drawings and text combine to give an unparalleled level of understanding of the traditional forms of construction the practitioner may encounter in many other buildings.

Henry Russell and the publishers would like to thank the family of W.B. McKay for their support for this reprint, and for providing an illustration of the author.

Henry Russell
College of Estate Management
Reading
December 2004

Henry Russell MA (Cantab) DipBldgCons FRICS IHBC

Henry Russell is a chartered surveyor and director of the Programme in Conservation of the Historic Environment at the College of Estate Management, Reading. He lectures on conservation subjects regularly. He is a trustee of The Georgian Group and of the Woodchester Mansion Trust in Gloucestershire. He is also a member of the Gloucester Diocesan Advisory Committee for the Care of Churches.